Safe practice of Chinese herbal medicine in Australia

Presented by Henry Liang

In 2015, the Chinese Medicine Board of Australia (the Board) released the “Guidelines for safe Chinese Herbal Medicine Practice” to support safe practice of Chinese herbal medicine. The Board also published on its website, “Updated listing of restricted Chinese herbs - September 2012”. Clearly, registered Chinese herbalists and dispensers must not dispense or advise patients on the use of these restricted herbal substances. But, are there any substitutes for these restricted herbs? In addition, are there any other Chinese herbs with safety concerns in practice? How do you use Chinese herbs during pregnancy? How do you deal with herb-drug interactions?

This workshop will discuss and analyse these professional issues and provide you with up-to-date knowledge of Chinese herbal therapies to improve the safety and quality of patient care.

Dr Henry Liang holds Bachelor and Master degrees in Chinese medicine from Guangzhou University of Chinese Medicine in China. In 2003 he completed his PhD study at RMIT University with research on the efficacy and safety of a Chinese herbal formulation for managing cancer. Dr Liang has taught and practised Chinese medicine in China and in Australia for over 30 years. He is the former head of Chinese Medicine Unit at Western Sydney University and visiting professor at Guangzhou University of Chinese Medicine.
